FOUR TO SERVE LIBRARY AS HONORARY CONSULTANTS

Librarian L. Quincy Mumford has announced the appointments of Ray A. Billington, Senior Resident Associate, Henry E. Huntington Library; Lyman H. Butterfield, Editor of The Adams Papers; J. Saunders Redding, Ernest I. White Professor of American Studies and Humane Letters, Cornell University; and C. Vann Woodward, Sterling Professor of History, Yale University, to three-year terms as Honorary Consultants to the Library of Congress. The appointments are effective January 1. The Library has sought to maintain productive communication with the world of scholarship by appointing as consultants recognized specialists in various subject fields. As Honorary Consultants, Messrs. Billington, Butterfield, Redding, and Woodward will advise the Library on the development of its collections, the expansion or improvement of its programs and services, and other matters of mutual interest and concern.

A native of Bay City, Mich., Mr. Billington will serve the Library as Honorary Consultant in American History. He attended the University of Wisconsin (Ph. B. 1926), the University of Michigan (M.A. 1927), Harvard University (Ph. D. 1933), Oxford University (M.A. 1953). He also holds degrees from Bowling Green University (Litt. D. 1958), the University of Redlands (1965), Park College (1961), Occidental College (1969), the University of Toledo (1970), and Northwestern University (1971), awarded during his long and distinguished career as

LEADERSHIP IN THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION IS THEME OF THIRD LC SYMPOSIUM

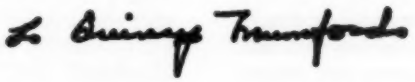
In observance of the American Revolution Bicentennial, the Library of Congress will hold the third in its series of American Revolution symposia on May 9 and 10, 1974, in the Library's Coolidge Auditorium. The symposium will have as its theme "Leadership in the American Revolution." The symposia series, begun in 1972, is made possible by the Morris and Gwendolyn Cafritz Foundation of Washington, D.C., and will continue through the Bicentennial year 1976.

Chairman of the third symposium will be Lyman H. Butterfield, Editor of The Adams Papers and member of the Advisory Committee on the Library of Congress American Revolution Bicentennial Program. Participants in the May 9 program will include Alfred N. Kelly, Professor of History, Wayne State University, who will speak on "Leadership in American History"; Marcus F. Cunliffe, Professor of American Studies, University of Sussex, whose topic will be "Congressional Leadership in the American Revolution"; and Gordon S. Wood, Professor of History, Brown University, who will discuss "Intellectual Leadership in the American Revolution." R. Don Higginbotham, Professor of History, University of North Carolina, and Bruce Mazlish, Professor of History, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, are scheduled speakers for the May 10 session, and will discuss the topics "Military Leadership in the American Revolution" and "American Revolutionary Leadership: The Psychological Dimension," respectively. Time has been scheduled in each session for discussion from the floor following each speaker's presentation.

HOLIDAY GREETINGS

Once again my Christmas wishes are borne to you, like the gentleman on the cover, on the pages of the Library's Information Bulletin. Since these pages throughout the year carried news of events at the Library, our publications, services, and programs, as well as news of the activities of the staff, it is fitting that the Bulletin should also record the one event in all the year that brings us together, in spirit if not in person, in fellowship and good will.

I hope that the Great Hall will be just as crowded this December 21 as it has been in years past, and I look forward to seeing you there to wish you and your families a joyful holiday season and happiness in the year to come. To those of you who cannot be there–readers and absent staff alike–I send wishes for a very happy holiday season.



The Library of Congress plans to publish the papers presented at this meeting. Already published are the proceedings of the first two in the series, The Development of a Revolutionary Mentality, and The Fundamental Testaments of the American Revolution.

Persons wishing to attend the May 1974 symposium should write for registration information to the American Revolution Bicentennial Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540.

CATALOGING INSTRUCTION OFFICE OFFERS COURSES

The Processing Department's Cataloging Instruction Office has recently distributed to divisional offices its catalog of courses, all of which have been retitled to reflect more accurately the content and audience. The courses, which are technical in nature, have been designed primarily to support the work of the Processing Department and consequently are generally open only to staff members of that department. Some courses may be available to staff outside the Processing Department, however, providing the course is job-related and the staff member is recommended by his or her division and department. Staff members of the Processing Department are recommended by their division chiefs to the department's Executive Officer.

The courses offered and staff for which each is intended are:

Catalog Entries for Cat Pub Searchers–Searcher/Editor, Catalog Publication Division

Catalog Use–(general course)–Staff members whose work requires the use of the catalog

Filing (Cat Mgmt)–Staff members, Catalog Management Division

Filing (Cat Pub)–Staff members, Catalog Publication Division, currently filing in the catalogs

Introduction to AACR–Staff members requiring intensive instruction in the descriptive cataloging of monographs

Introductory Course for Preliminary Catalogers–Preliminary catalogers, Descriptive Cataloging Division

Introductory Course for Processing Assistants–Processing assistants, Shared Cataloging Division

Introductory Course for Serial Catalogers–Staff members holding subject cataloging positions, Subject Cataloging Division

Searching (citations)–Staff members whose present position requires searching in the Library's official or main catalogs. Prerequisite: Catalog Use (general course)

Specialized Procedures for Beginning Descriptive Catalogers–Staff members holding descriptive cataloging positions, Descriptive or Shared Cataloging Divisions

Subject Cataloging: An Overview–Staff members in the Descriptive and Shared Cataloging Divisions and others, as appropriate

Survey of the Cataloging Process–Shelflisters, Subject Cataloging Division

Questions concerning course schedules, content, and the generation of new courses should be directed to the Cataloging Instruction Office, ext. 5263.

MANUSCRIPT EXHIBIT MARKS FROST/MAUGHAM CENTENARIES

Two of this century's best-known literary figures, Robert Frost and W. Somerset Maugham, were born two months apart in 1874. Both men, one a master British storyteller, the other a uniquely American poet, had very special ties to the Library of Congress. To celebrate their centenaries, the Manuscript Division will exhibit, from January through March, a number of their holograph literary works and pieces of correspondence.

In 1946 Maugham presented the original manuscript of his autobiographical novel Of Human Bondage to the Library as partial payment of the "debt we [the British people] owe you for the kindness and the generosity with which you received the women and children of my country when in fear of German invasion they came to America." In addition to this manuscript, which is housed in 16 bound volumes, the exhibit will also include an earlier and unpublished precursor of the novel which Maugham had titled "The Artistic Temperament of Stephen Carey." The draft of the address made by Mr. Maugham in presenting Of Human Bondage to the Library will also be shown.

Robert Frost's long association with the Library dates back to the 1940's when he began a series of readings from his works in the Coolidge Auditorium. He was appointed Consultant in Poetry in English for 1958-59 and from 1959 until his death he served as the Library's Honorary Consultant in the Humanities. Among his literary manuscripts to be shown are "Dedication," the poem written for the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy on January 20, 1961, as well as many of Frost's best-loved poems, such as "Mending Wall" and "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening."

The exhibit will also present the poet's thoughts on the creative processes, the art of teaching, and other subjects as they are revealed in his letters to Louis Untermeyer, a fellow-poet, close friend, and adviser for many decades. On the use of words, he wrote, "They are worse then nothing unless they do someting, unless they amount to deeds as in ultimatums and war crys . . . My definition of literature would be just this, words that have become deeds." As for his teaching techniques, he put his students "on the operating table and proceeded to take ideas they didn't know they had out of them . . . Only a few resented being thus shown up and caught with the goods on them."

The exhibit will also include the draft of Justice Felix Frankfurter's remarks at a dinner celebrating Frost's 88th birthday in which he praised the poet's ability to make us "aware of what we so often look at but do not see. He makes us reflect on essentials by sidetracking trivia that preoccupy us."

scholar and historian. Teaching positions he has held include Instructor and Assistant Professor, Clark University (1931-37); Assistant Professor (1937-38), Associate Professor (1938-44), and Professor (1944) at Smith College; Professor of History, Northwestern University (1944-49); and William Smith Mason Professor of History, Northwestern (1949-63). Since 1963 he has served as Senior Resident Associate at the Henry E. Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif.

Mr. Billington's published works include The Protestant Crusade (1938), Westward Expansion (1949), American History Since 1865 (1950), American History Before 1877 (1951), The Far Western Frontier 1830-1860 (1956), Historians' Contribution to Anglo-American Misunderstanding (1966), America's Frontier Heritage (1966), Genesis of Frontier Thesis (1971), and a number of articles appearing in periodicals. He has served on the Board of Editors of American Heritage (1959-62), Arizona and the West (1959-), American West (1962-), American History and Life (1964-), Pacific Historian (1965-), and the Western Historical Quarterly (1970-).

Mr. Billington makes his home in San Marino with his wife, the former Mable R. Crotty.

Mr. Butterfield, an educator and historian, was born in Lyndonville, N.Y. He attended Harvard University where he received his A.B. (1930) and A.M. (1934) degrees. He has been honored by Franklin and Marshall College (Litt. D. 1952), Bucknell University (1953), and Washington College (D. Hum. 1963). He too will serve the Library as Honorary Consultant in American History, in addition to his duties as member of the Advisory Board of the Library's American Revolution Bicentennial Program.

His many teaching positions have included Instructor of English, Harvard University (1930-37); Assistant and Associate Professor of English, Franklin and Marshall College (1937-46); History Lecturer, College of William and Mary (1951-54); and History Lecturer, Harvard University (1955-64).

A recognized scholar in his field, Mr. Butterfield has served as Director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, Williamsburg, Va. (1951-54); History Editor, Harvard University Press, (1965-); and Director of the Council on Library Resources, Inc. (1956-).

He is the author of John Witherspoon Comes to America (1953), and Editor of Anticipation (1941) and The Letters of Benjamin Rush (1951). He was also Assistant, Associate Editor, and Editor (with others) of The Papers of Thomas Jefferson, Vols. 1-5 (1946-52).

Mr. Butterfield, his wife, the former Elizabeth Anne Eaton, make their home in Cambridge, Mass.

Professor Redding who will serve the Library as Honorary Consultant in American Cultural History, was born in Wilmington, Del., and first attended Lincoln University, 1923-24, and then Brown University, where he earned a Ph. B. degree (1928), an A.M. (1932), a D. Litt. (1963), and served as the University Scholar from 1932 to 1933. He has received honorary degrees from Hobart College (1964), Dickinson College (1970), the University of Delaware (1970), and the University of Portland (1970).

A well-known educator, Professor Redding has taught at Morehouse College, Atlanta, Ga. (1928-31); Louisville (Kentucky) Municipal College (1934-36); Hampton Institute (1943-66), and joined the staff of Cornell University in 1970. From 1966 to 1970, he served as Director of the Division of Research and Publications at the National Endowment for the Humanities, Washington, D.C.

Professor Redding was a Rockefeller Foundation Fellow, 1940-41, a Guggenheim Fellow, 1944-45, a visiting professor of English at Brown University, 1949-50, a fellow in humanities at Duke University, 1964-65, the U.S. State Department Trustee Fund for Research and Education Exchange Lecturer to India in 1952, and the American Society of African Culture Exchange Lecturer to Africa in 1962. He was a member of the Fiction Awards Committee of the 1955 National Book Awards.

His publications include To Make A Black Poet (1939); No Day of Triumph (1942 winner of the Mayflower award); Stranger and Alone (1950); They Came in Chains (1950); On Being Negro in America (1951); An American in India (1954); The Lonesome Road (1958); The Negro (1967). He is a member of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, the American Folklore Society, the English Association, the American Society of African Culture Executive Board, and Phi Beta Kappa.

Mr. Redding is married to the former Esther Elizabeth James. They have two sons and have made their home since 1970 in Ithaca, N.Y.

Appointed to the Consultanship in American History, Professor Woodward was born in Vanndale, Ark., holds degrees from Emory University (Ph. B.

LC CONCERTS POPULAR WITH RADIO LISTENERS

According to a WETA-FM listener survey made in November, the Library of Congress concerts rank high among the station's most popular programs. Questionnaires were sent by Washington, D.C.'s public broadcasting radio station to over 12,000 WETA-FM members, and 2,000 replies were received.

The LC concerts ranked seventh among the 27 programs listened to by the members and their family. The concerts ranked eighth as the listener's favorite program, and no one checked the concerts as the program least liked.

The chamber music concerts from the Library's Coolidge Auditorium are usually heard live each Friday evening at 8:30 p.m. on radio station WETA-FM (90.0). The concerts, sponsored by the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation, the McKim Fund, and the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation, are available to stations in other cities through the Katie and Walter Louchheim Fund in the Library of Congress.

1930 and D. Litt. 1963), Columbia University (M.A. 1932), Oxford University (M.A. 1954), the University of North Carolina (Ph. D. 1937 and LL.D. 1959), the University of Arkansas (LL.D. 1961), and the College of William and Mary (L.H.D. 1964).

Professor Woodward has served as an Instructor at the Georgia School of Technology (1930-31 and 1932-33), as Assistant Professor of History at the University of Florida (1937-39), as Visiting Professor of History at the University of Virginia (1939-40), as Associate Professor of History at Scripps College (1940-43), as Associate Professor (1946) and Professor of History (1947-61), Johns Hopkins University, and as Fleming Lecturer, Louisiana State University (1951), Richard Lecturer, University of Virginia (1954), Commonwealth Lecturer, University of London (1954), Harmsworth Professor of American History, Oxford University (1954-55), and Sterling Professor of History, Yale University (1961 to the present).

Professor Woodward's published works include Tom Watson: Agrarian Rebel (1938), The Battle for Leyte Gulf (1947), Origins of the New South, 1877-1919 (1951), Reunion and Reaction (1951), The Strange Career of Jim Crow (1955), The Burden of Southern History (1960), and American Counterpoint (1971).

Professor Woodward is married to the former Glenn Boyd MacLeod. They make their home in Hamden, Conn.

ATLAS ON PAPERMAKING ACQUIRED BY LC

An atlas showing a virtually complete schematic layout of the papermaking processes and machinery used in France in the early 1800's was recently acquired for the Library's collections. Consisting of 17 folded plates, some measuring 16 by 20 inches, the atlas was published in Paris in 1833-34 to accompany a two-volume manual on the manufacture of paper and paperboard. The manual itself was acquired by the Library in 1947; the atlas now completes the Library's copy of the work.

Entitled Manuel du fabricant de papiers, ou De l'art de la papeterie, suivi de l'art du fabricant de cartons, et de l'art du formaire (Paris, Roret, 1833-34. TS1105.L57), the manual was written by Louis Sébastien Lenormand, a professor of science and technology at the Centrale Tarn and a collaborator on the French Dictionnaire Technologique de l'Encyclopédie Moderne. Lenormand also is generally credited with being the first to demonstrate the parachute principle by jumping from a tower in 1783.

Although the first paper mills in France are supposed to have been built in 1314, the use of machinery in papermaking did not begin until much later. Robert, a workman at the paper mill in Esson, France, is credited with being the first to present to the world the idea of making paper by machinery, in 1798.

About 30 years after its publication, several parts from Lenormand's manual were incorporated in A. Proteaux's major work in French on paper manufacturing, which was later issued in English as the Practical Guide for the Manufacture of Paper and Boards (Philadelphia, H. C. Baird, 1866. 292 p. TS1105.P95). The translator, Horatio Paine, believed his translation to be the first practical treatise of its kind published in English in this country.

After it is cataloged, the atlas will be placed with the manual in the Library's general collections.

STAFF NEWS

AWARDS

Marion Schild, Field Director of the LC Shared Cataloging Center in Florence, Italy, was awarded a Superior Service Award on November 26 in Florence at a special ceremony and presentation made by the Library's Florence book dealer, Mario Casilini. In order for Miss Schild to be able to share with her colleagues in Italy the credit of her accomplishments, the Librarian departed from the normal procedure of presenting the award at the Library.

Miss Schild came to the Library in 1946. In the Descriptive Cataloging Division she served as a Senior Cataloger and Reviser from 1946-52, as Head of the Germanic Languages Unit, Foreign Languages Section from 1952-57, as Deputy Principal Cataloger from 1964-66, and as Principal Cataloger from 1966 until her appointment to the Florence Office in January 1968.

Before coming to the Library, Miss Schild spent five years with the Plimpton Library at Columbia University. She received her B.S. degree from Columbia University and later received a Ph. D. degree in romance language and literature from the University of Munich.

The Superior Service Award coincided with Miss

Schild's retirement from the Florence Office and her return to the United States.

Mary E. Colbert, Elevator Operator Foreman, Buildings Management Office, was presented a 30-year Federal Service Award pin on December 7, by F. E. Croxton, Director of the Administrative Department.

A native of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Colbert was employed by the U.S. Department of the Navy from 1942 to 1943 before beginning her career at the Library in 1944 as an elevator operator. She served in this capacity for 11 years until she was promoted to Supervisor of the elevator operators and checkstand attendants in 1963. She was promoted to her present position February 1972.

Mrs. Colbert has had the satisfaction of raising a family of nine children, all of whom have received a college education. One, son, Vince, plays semi-professional baseball with the Cleveland Indians Triple A Club.

On Wednesday, December 5, Jennings H. Howle, Private on the Library Special Police Force, was presented his 20-year Federal Service Award pin by Gerald T. Garvey, Chief of the Buildings Management Office.

Officer Howle spent his formative years in Darlington, S.C. where he attended grade school and high school. He graduated from St. John's High School in 1951 and then enlisted in the U.S. Air Force. He was assigned to Korea with an Air Police Unit (K-9) and was honorably discharged in 1955. From 1955 to 1957, he worked in private industry.

In September 1957 Officer Howle came to the Library and joined the LC Police Force, a position he held until 1959. At that time he resigned and became a Correctional Officer at the Lorton Reformatory. In 1960 he returned to the Library where he has distinguished himself as a capable officer.

STAFF ACTIVITIES

Elemer Bako, Finno-Ugrian Area Specialist in the Slavic and Central European Division, was awarded the golden medal of the Árpád-Academy, the foremost cultural organization of American intellectuals of Hungarian origin, for his two-volume Guide to Hungarian Studies, recently published by the Hoover Institution Press. The award was announced during the annual Hungarian Congress, held in Cleveland, Ohio, from November 23-25.

Included in the program of the Congress was a symposium organized by the Hungarian Library Association of America, at which Mr. Bako, Association chairman, spoke on "Some of the Most Important Issues of Hungarian Librarianship in North America."

Edwin G. Beal, Jr., Assistant Chief of the Orientalia Division, is the author of an article on the history and activities of the Committee on East Asian Libraries (formerly Committee on American Library Resources on the Far East) of the Association for Asian Studies. This article, which traces the origin of the Committee back to discussions held at the 1948 meeting of the American Library Association in Atlantic City, appears as Appendix I in issue No. 41 of the Newsletter of the Committee.

Lewis I. Flacks, Attorney-Examiner in the Renewal and Assignments Section, Examining Division, Copyright Office, spoke at a Council on International Nontheatrical Events (CINE) Symposium on copyright problems pertaining to motion pictures, held at the Ramada Inn in Washington, D.C., on November 15. A question and answer period followed Mr. Flacks' remarks.

NEW REFERENCE WORKS

The first annual catalog of Ontario Government Publications (1972) has been received by the Serial Division of the Library of Congress. This 125-page catalog is a cumulation of the Monthly Checklist of Ontario Government Publications. It includes a "List of Full Depository Libraries" where certain Ontario official publications are sent.

"A retrospective bibliography of Ontario publications covering the years 1956-1971 is presently being compiled in the Cataloging Office, Printing Services Branch. Upon its completion the bibliographical record of Ontario Government Publications will be complete from 1901 to the present date." When processed, Ontario Government Publications will be added to the reference collections of the Newspaper and Current Periodical Room. [Paul N. Boswell]

The Public Affairs Information Service's Foreign Language Index (New York, 1972-. Z7164.E2P8) is a selective index of publications on economics and public affairs in French, German, Italian, Portuguese, and Spanish. It is intended to be a counterpart to the PAIS Bulletin, which is for English-language materials. Volume 1 of the Foreign Language Index covers the years 1968-1971 and indexes periodical articles only. Beginning with Volume 2 for 1972, the Index is being issued as a quarterly, with the fourth issue an annual cumulation. Volume 2 has been expanded to include entries for books, pamphlets, government publications, reports of public and private agencies, and periodical articles. Publications are listed under English-language subject headings and there is also an author index. Sets of the PAIS Foreign Language Index can be examined in the Main Reading Room and the Annex Reading Room. [Barbara A. Burkey]

The second edition of Paul Wasserman's and Janice McLean's Consultants and Consulting Organizations Directory; A Reference Guide to Concerns and Individuals Engaged in Consultation for Business and Industry (Detroit, Gale, 1973. 835 p. HD69.C6W37 1973) is now available in the Main Reading Room reference collection. The work contains information on 5,041 firms and people, representing a 100 percent expansion of the first edition. Because of traditional ethical usage, fields such as law and accounting contain no listings, and other fields, such as engineering, are represented only by selected consultants and firms, because of an abundance of sources of information.

The work is divided into three main sections: the first is an alphabetical listing by name of the individual or organization, a brief description of its services, and a coded list of the field(s) in which it operates; the second is a field index to the main list, subarranged by state; and the third is an index to officers named in the first section. The work is designed to be used in conjunction with Who's Who in Consulting, a second edition of which is in preparation. The Who's Who will offer biographical information on many of the people mentioned in the Directory. The Wasserman/McLean work will be updated by quarterly supplements entitled New Consultants.
